'Nothing short of a stirring call to action. A welcome and timely intervention.'

DIPESH CHAKRABARTY, UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

'Big problems meet big data in this compelling case for long-term thinking in the public sphere.'

BETHANY NOWVISKIE, UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

'A ringing call not just for more knowledge of the past, but for the centrality of a broad and deep understanding of history to public knowledge itself.'

CRAIG CALHOUN, LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE

Leading historians David Armitage and Jo Guldi identify a recent shift back to longer-term narratives, following many decades of increasing specialisation, which they argue is vital for the future of historical scholarship and how it is communicated. This provocative and thoughtful book makes an important intervention in the debate about the role of history and the humanities in a digital age. It will excite discussion among policymakers, activists and entrepreneurs as well as ordinary listeners, viewers, readers, students and teachers.

Jo GULDI is the Hans Rothfels Assistant Professor of History at Brown University.

DAVID ARMITAGE is the Lloyd C. Blankfein Professor of History at Harvard University.

GULDI AND ARMITAGE # THE HISTORY MANIFESTO

THE HISTORY MANIFESTO

How should historians speak truth to power – and why does it matter? Why is five hundred years better than five months or five years as a planning horizon? And why is history – especially long-term history – so essential to understanding the multiple pasts which gave rise to our conflicted present? The History Manifesto is a call to arms to historians and everyone interested in the role of history in contemporary society.
