

FXB Work-in-Progress Series

Danilo Mandić, PhD

Refugees and Risk: Syrian Migrant Smuggling on the Balkan Route

Tuesday, May 9, 2017

12:30 – 1:20, FXB 710

Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health
651 Huntington Avenue, Boston, MA 02115

Danilo Mandić is a comparative historical sociologist and Harvard College fellow in the Department of Sociology. Mandić was born and raised in Belgrade, Serbia and received his AB from Princeton and his PhD from Harvard. His interests include social movements, nationalism, social theory, ethnic relations, civil war, and organized crime. In his dissertation, he investigated the role of organized crime in relation to separatist movement outcomes in Kosovo/Serbia and South Ossetia/Georgia over a twenty-year period. He has done extensive archival and ethnographic work in the Balkans and Caucasus. He is interested in understanding the interrelations of states, social movements, and illicit flows of people, goods, and ideas in regions with separatist disputes. This spring he offered the new course, “Refugees in Global Perspective.”

Open to the Harvard community. Questions? Contact organizer at mcmiller@hsph.harvard.edu

HARVARD T.H. CHAN
SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH