

∞ Undergraduate Women in Economics Challenge Meeting ∞

Undergraduate Women in Economics
NBER, 1050 Massachusetts Ave. Cambridge MA
Sunday, May 17, 2015

---

School representatives

Anna Aizer (Brown University) aizer@brown.edu

Anna Aizer is Associate Professor of Economics and Public Policy at Brown University. She is a health and labor economist whose work primarily focuses on understanding the intergenerational transmission of poverty.

Francisca Antman (University of Colorado Boulder) francisca.antman@colorado.edu

Francisca Antman is Assistant Professor of Economics at the University of Colorado Boulder. She is a member of the AEA Committee on the Status of Minority Groups in the Economics Profession (CSMGEP). Her research interests are in international migration, human capital investments, and allocation of resources within households and families.

David Cleeton (Illinois State University) dlcleet@ilstu.edu

David Cleeton is Professor of Economics and Department Chair of the Economics Department at Illinois State University. His teaching interests include financial economics and the political economy of the European Union and his research has concerned insider trading regulations and the health insurance market.

Mark Dickie (University of Central Florida) mdickie@ucf.edu

Mark Dickie is Professor of Economics and Chair of the Department of Economics at the University of Central Florida. His research interests include environmental and resource economics, health economics and applied econometrics.

Rachel Friedberg (Brown University) rachel\_friedberg@brown.edu

Rachel Friedberg is Senior Lecturer of Economics at Brown University. She has taught principles for many years, as well as econometrics and research methods for causal inference. Friedberg's research has focused on topics related to immigration and labor economics.

Shelly Lundberg (University of California, Santa Barbara) slundberg@ucsb.edu

Shelly Lundberg is the Broom Professor of Demography and Associate Director of the Broom Center for Demography at the University of California, Santa Barbara. She works in labor and family economics, with current projects focusing on inequality and gender differences in educational attainment.

Douglas McKee (Yale University) douglas.mckee@yale.edu

Douglas McKee is Associate Chair and Senior Lecturer of Economics at Yale University. His fields of interest include development economics, labor economics, health economics and structural estimation. He writes about teaching and learning at <http://teachbetter.co> and co-hosts the Teach Better Podcast.

Tim Salmon (Southern Methodist University) tsalmon@smu.edu

Tim Salmon is Professor of Economics and Director of Doctoral Studies at Southern Methodist University. His primary research interests are applied game theory, auction theory, experimental economics and learning behavior in strategic games.

Lucie Schmidt (Williams College) lschmidt@williams.edu

Lucie Schmidt is Professor of Economics and Chair of Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program at Williams College. Her research focuses on economics of the family, public finance, labor economics, government transfer programs and the well-being of low-income families.

Danila Serra (Southern Methodist University) dserra@smu.edu

Danila Serra is Assistant Professor of Economics and member of the Center for Global Health Impact at Southern Methodist University. She has worked in the fields of experimental economics, development economics, economics of corruption and political economy.

Katharine Shester (Washington and Lee University) shesterk@wlu.edu

Katharine Shester is Assistant Professor of Economics at Washington and Lee University. Her research interests combine economic history, urban economics, and labor economics. She is currently working on projects related to public housing and segregation. Shester teaches principles of microeconomics, urban economics, economic history, and women in the economy.

Sarah Turner (University of Virginia) set5h@eservices.virginia.edu

Sarah Turner is University Professor of Economics and Education, the Souder Family Professor, and Department Chair of the Economics Department at the University of Virginia. She has conducted extensive research on higher education, including resource allocation, college completion rates and outcomes, and student loans.

Board of Experts

Amanda Bayer (Swarthmore College) abayer1@swarthmore.edu

Amanda Bayer is Professor of Economics at Swarthmore College and the creator and editor of Diversifying Economic Quality, an online resource to improve teaching practices in economics. She co-organized the National Summit on Diversity in the Economics Profession, hosted by the Board of Governors and the AEA. Her research fields are labor economics and game theory.

UWE Challenge organizers

Claudia Goldin (Harvard University) cgoldin@harvard.edu

Claudia Goldin is Henry Lee Professor of Economics at Harvard University and the director of the NBER's Development of the American Economy program. Goldin's research spans many areas, including the economic history of women and education. In 2013/14, she was the president of the AEA. Her recent work concerns the increased employment of older women.

Tatyana Avilova (NBER, Project Manager for UWE) tanya.avilova@gmail.com

Tatyana Avilova is Project Manager for the UWE Challenge. She graduated from Harvard University in 2013 with a degree in Economics and spent the following year in Japan on a Fulbright Fellowship studying nurses' work stress and their work-life balance. She will be working as the UWE Project Manager at the NBER until Fall 2016.

UWE Challenge website:

<http://scholar.harvard.edu/goldin/UWE>